

JJ MUMBLES - BOXES & BUTTONS EP FEAT. NADINA

RELEASED 27th February 2012

This debut release from beat connoisseur JJ Mumbles takes a dreamy bite-size portion and sends it in six hugely different dance directions. With remixes from the likes of (U) (upcoming on George Fitzgerald's Man Make Music label) and Fybe:one (co-producer on Jono McCleery's LP for Ninja Tune/Counter) as well as a host of exciting talent from Europe's diverse beats and bass scenes.

Taking residence at Streets Of Beige, WotNot co-founder JJ has become a selector of choice for London's biggest alternative music movements. While regularly appearing on NTS Live radio and contributing to the You'llSoonKnow.us blog, JJ's Soundcloud page has proved a treasure trove to online diggers around the world, crammed with hip hop gems, bass beauties and beat oddities.

This dreamy beat ballad, with Nadina's intimate vocal riding its shimmering synths and deep bass, highlights a love for the musical curveball and demonstrates a musical mind that stands out from a heavily saturated UK music scene. The remixes stand up just as well; there's Fybe's bubbling headphone dubstep, (U)'s uber-hip 808 floor-filler and Jamie Wilder's slick 90s retro. The full release also includes Kid Icki's Ratatat-on-crack flip, soulful bass from Bill Daggs and sexy old-school house from Berlin's Glenn Astro.

All this makes for an explosive start to 2012 which looks to be a big year for WotNot. With releases from the likes of Deft (LP on Hypercolour in the making) and Chesslo Junior (featured on Om Unit's XLR8R podcast), and a follow-up to DA-10's psychedelic masterpiece The Future Is Futureless EP in the pipeline, it's time to get on board with a label "at the forefront of the UK's IDM and electronic scene" (BBC6 Music Introducing with Tom Robinson).
